JUVENILE IMPACT PROGRAM

What is The Juvenile Impact Program?

The Juvenile Impact Program is a four hour program in which juveniles are faced with the consequences and choices of their behavior. The program also gives parents and juveniles information about the juvenile justice system and the consequences of being incarcerated.

What is the purpose of the Impact Program?

Denton County Sheriff Will Travis believes that learning about the consequences of delinquent and criminal activity plays an important part in helping divert youthful offenders away from such behavior.

It is our hope that being exposed to the real-life consequences of delinquent or criminal behavior will affect the behavior of these juveniles.

Who may attend?

Anyone 10 to 17 years of age that has been referred by a school, court or parent may attend the program. Most of the juveniles attending the program have engaged in delinquent behavior or are at risk for such behavior. Many have been truant, runaway, or disruptive in class, but are not yet in the juvenile justice system.

Who may place a juvenile in the program?

Any parent, teacher, police officer or court may place a juvenile or recommend that he or she attend the Impact Program. Placement or recommendation by anyone other than the courts is voluntary. The program is provided free of charge.

How are juveniles placed in the program?

A referring person or court should first notify the parent(s) of the juvenile being referred and request that the parents contact the Denton County Juvenile Impact Program to schedule an attendance date. All who attend receive a certificate of attendance.

What is required of parents?

At least one parent or guardian must accompany the juvenile for the entire program. All persons must dress appropriately: no hats, no shorts or open midriiffs. Violators will not be permitted to attend the program. No tobacco may be used and no food or drinks are allowed. There will be one convenience break midway through the program.

All court ordered participants must register within 3 business days after receiving court orders.

What should we expect during the program?

After an initial introduction by a Denton County Deputy Sheriff, a peer group made up of inmates from the Texas Juvenile Justice Department (when available to attend) will speak about their experiences with the criminal justice system, how they came to be incarcerated and what they have learned.
